Thatcher Opera House

"Tempest And Sunshine"

"Tempest and Sunshine" a beautiful play with a southern atmosphere before the war will be seen at Thatcher Opera House on Tuesday, March 5, is a dramatization of Mary J. Holmes popular novel of that name dramatized by Lem B. Parker and it is unnecessary to go into detail, other than to add that it is a complete production in every particular and the majority are familiar with Mary J. Holmes' style.

The cast is headed by Miss Quina Marion and Miss Billie Lee, who have been seen separately in many well-known productions, but it remained for Woods and Chalker to secure them both for the same attraction.

You are promised an unusually pleasant evening's entertainment by these two clever actresses and company.

"Miss Nobody From Starland"

In every scene and situation in "Miss Nobody from Starland" which comes to the Thatcher Opera House March 11, the master hand of that successful producer of musical comedies, Mort H. Singer, is in evidence. Profiting by and improving upon his previous bids for popular favor in such phenomenal success as "The Flirting Princess," "Stubborn Cinderella," "The Goddess of Liberty" and others Mr. Singer has imbued "Miss Nobody from Starland" with a spirit of action and novelty which promises to make it one of the most enduring musical comedies in stage history. The book and lyrics are the combined efforts of Messrs Hugh, Adams, and Mitchell, and the music was furnished by Joseph E. Howard, America's most prolific writer of song hits. In the title role will appear the popular prima donna, Olive Vail, and she will be supported by a splendid cast of principals and chorus. "Miss Nobody from Starland" in addition to an abundance of tuneful music and an exceptionally interesting plot, boasts of novelties unequalled in stage conception. The principal feature is of course, the much talked-of dress rehearsal scene, in which the audience is initiated in that mysterious region behind the scenes, where the entire company is shown rehearsing a musical production. The antics of the stage manager, and the mishaps common to the preliminary work of staging a big show are convulsingly funny. This scene has been a tremendous hit wherever seen, and is easily the most popular ever introduced into musical comedy.

R. G. Collins, Postmaster, Barnegat, N. J., was troubled with a severe grippe cough. He says: "I would be completely exhausted after each fit of violent coughing. I bought a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and before I had taken it all the coughing spells had entirely ceased. It can't be beat." For sale at Co-op Drug Co.

Burglar Attacks Mrs. Jack Cudahy

Pasadena, Cal., March 2.—Struggling in the grasp of a masked man who had entered her home at 588 Arroyo Crest after cutting the house telephone wires. Mrs. Jack Cudahy, the former wife of a son of the Kansas City millionaire pecker, last night fought her way to the front porch of her home and screamed for aid. Mrs. Cudahy's maid, who had been felled by a blow from the marauder, lay on the floor screaming with fright and pain while the struggle progressed. Neighbors, attracted by Mrs.

Cudahy's cries, rushed to her aid and the masked man fled. Mrs. Cudahy was severely bruised on one of her arms, where she struck against the door casing while fighting to free herself from the grasp of the supposed burglar. She was unable to give more than a hazy view of her assailant.
